

"Happy birthday Danny," exclaimed Joseph as he walked through the door, arms filled with presents. It was Danny's tenth birthday, and his grandpa Jo had come to celebrate with him. Out of the corner of Joseph's eye, he saw a baby playing with what he thought to be a catastrophic creation - a balloon. Joseph anticipated the bomb-like sound that would eminently erupt.

"BANG!"

As the colour drained from his face, Joseph started to slip back into his memories.